

Subject: Fwd: /Slash
From: Rob Burgess <rburgess@nuvo.net>
To: Rob Burgess <robertandertonburgess@gmail.com>
Date Sent: Wed, 17 Apr 2019 14:29:23 -0400
Date Received:

----- Forwarded message -----

From: NUVO <newsletter@nuvo.net>
Date: Wed, Feb 20, 2019 at 9:40 AM
Subject: /Slash
To: <editors@nuvo.net>

/Slash: Wednesday, Feb. 20

From the News Desk

Updated 49 min ago

It's Rob Burgess, NUVO News Editor, back with you again. I hope you're having a great Wednesday.

Last week, I told you the first round of voting on our City Committee page had just closed. I'm now in the process of reporting out the winning story. Here's the winning idea, which more than half of you voted for:

"My questions are about Indianapolis migration trends within I-465. Is the downtown housing boom sustainable? How many racial and economic minorities are being forced out? Where are they going? I'd like to see a story focused on answering these questions."

This is a great idea, and I'm excited to tackle it. As a journalist, when I hear these type of questions, my first instinct is to find available data.

My first stop is year-over-year average rent prices in Indianapolis. This won't be news to anyone, but housing costs are on a steady rise. According to numbers from the U.S. Census, the average rent for Indianapolis was $826. In 2017, the number had risen to $908. This increase points toward the same trends seen nationwide during the same period.

Next, I want to see if I can find hard numbers on migration patterns. This is where I'm running into some trouble. The Census data I'm finding is organized by migration from state to state, and county to county. This is useful, but it doesn't get to the heart of the question, which is even more hyperlocal than that.

So, now that I've started getting my facts in order, I need your help again, readers. Do you or someone you know have something to contribute to this story? Where are some specific locations where you see these sorts of trends occurring? What are some examples of low income housing begin moved out of certain neighborhoods? (I've heard Lugar Towers mentioned as one example.)

I'm looking forward to sharing what I find with you. But, more importantly, I'm looking forward to collaborating with readers who are subject matter experts here. Please get in touch with me at rburgess@nuvo.net if you have something to contribute to this story.

In the meantime, things are heating up at the Statehouse. We've got the latest on Hate Crimes, Teacher Pay, and Reproductive Health below.

Finally, you'll notice a pop-up ad when you go to the web site this week—asking you to consider our paid membership program. Our message is clear, and direct: Community journalism can only survive with community support. If you appreciate the type of local, independent journalism NUVO has brought Indianapolis for the past 29 years, your membership will go a long way in helping us continue to year 30 and beyond. 100 percent of membership dollars go towards our editorial budget/paying writers. nuvo.net/membership

Until next week,

Rob

Senate Republicans Gut Hate Crimes Bill

Indiana Senate Republicans gutted a proposed hate crimes bill on Tuesday with an amendment removing protected classes. Immediately after the vote, Gov. Holcomb released a statement criticizing the neutered version. Read more

No Raises for Indiana Teachers in House Budget

Despite months of heated debate, Indiana House Republicans are not setting aside extra dollars for meaningful teacher raises in their version of the state's $14.5 billion education budget plan released Monday night. Read more

Committee Passes Ban on 2nd Trimester Abortions

A bill to criminalize the safest form of abortion in the second trimester has passed out of the House Public Policy committee following hours of testimony against it last week. Read more

House Bill Gives Pregnant Teens Medical Consent

Bill 1547 allows girls 16 or older to consent to prenatal, labor, and delivery care—with provision requiring medical providers to make a reasonable attempt to contact parents/guardians. Read more

Contest: Lily & Madeleine

Enter to win tickets to Lily & Madeleine at Old National Centre on March 1st.

Contest: State Champs

Enter to win tickets to State Champs at Old National Centre on March 5th.

NUVO, 3951 N. Meridian St., Suite 200, Indianapolis, IN 46208

SafeUnsubscribe™ editors@nuvo.net

Update Profile | About our service provider

Sent by newsletter@nuvo.net

--

Rob Burgess
News Editor, NUVO
NUVO.net
Phone: 317-808-4614
Twitter: @robaburg

Subject: Fwd: /Slash
From: Rob Burgess <rburgess@nuvo.net>
To: Joe Amditis <jamditis@gmail.com>
Date Sent: Wed, 6 Mar 2019 14:34:25 -0500
Date Received:

----- Forwarded message -----

From: NUVO <newsletter@nuvo.net>
Date: Wed, Feb 20, 2019 at 9:40 AM
Subject: /Slash
To: <editors@nuvo.net>

/Slash: Wednesday, Feb. 20

From the News Desk

Updated 49 min ago

It's Rob Burgess, NUVO News Editor, back with you again. I hope you're having a great Wednesday.

Last week, I told you the first round of voting on our City Committee page had just closed. I'm now in the process of reporting out the winning story. Here's the winning idea, which more than half of you voted for:

"My questions are about Indianapolis migration trends within I-465. Is the downtown housing boom sustainable? How many racial and economic minorities are being forced out? Where are they going? I'd like to see a story focused on answering these questions."

This is a great idea, and I'm excited to tackle it. As a journalist, when I hear these type of questions, my first instinct is to find available data.

My first stop is year-over-year average rent prices in Indianapolis. This won't be news to anyone, but housing costs are on a steady rise. According to numbers from the U.S. Census, the average rent for Indianapolis was $826. In 2017, the number had risen to $908. This increase points toward the same trends seen nationwide during the same period.

Next, I want to see if I can find hard numbers on migration patterns. This is where I'm running into some trouble. The Census data I'm finding is organized by migration from state to state, and county to county. This is useful, but it doesn't get to the heart of the question, which is even more hyperlocal than that.

So, now that I've started getting my facts in order, I need your help again, readers. Do you or someone you know have something to contribute to this story? Where are some specific locations where you see these sorts of trends occurring? What are some examples of low income housing begin moved out of certain neighborhoods? (I've heard Lugar Towers mentioned as one example.)

I'm looking forward to sharing what I find with you. But, more importantly, I'm looking forward to collaborating with readers who are subject matter experts here. Please get in touch with me at rburgess@nuvo.net if you have something to contribute to this story.

In the meantime, things are heating up at the Statehouse. We've got the latest on Hate Crimes, Teacher Pay, and Reproductive Health below.

Finally, you'll notice a pop-up ad when you go to the web site this week—asking you to consider our paid membership program. Our message is clear, and direct: Community journalism can only survive with community support. If you appreciate the type of local, independent journalism NUVO has brought Indianapolis for the past 29 years, your membership will go a long way in helping us continue to year 30 and beyond. 100 percent of membership dollars go towards our editorial budget/paying writers. nuvo.net/membership

Until next week,

Rob

Senate Republicans Gut Hate Crimes Bill

Indiana Senate Republicans gutted a proposed hate crimes bill on Tuesday with an amendment removing protected classes. Immediately after the vote, Gov. Holcomb released a statement criticizing the neutered version. Read more

No Raises for Indiana Teachers in House Budget

Despite months of heated debate, Indiana House Republicans are not setting aside extra dollars for meaningful teacher raises in their version of the state's $14.5 billion education budget plan released Monday night. Read more

Committee Passes Ban on 2nd Trimester Abortions

A bill to criminalize the safest form of abortion in the second trimester has passed out of the House Public Policy committee following hours of testimony against it last week. Read more

House Bill Gives Pregnant Teens Medical Consent

Bill 1547 allows girls 16 or older to consent to prenatal, labor, and delivery care—with provision requiring medical providers to make a reasonable attempt to contact parents/guardians. Read more

Contest: Lily & Madeleine

Enter to win tickets to Lily & Madeleine at Old National Centre on March 1st.

Contest: State Champs

Enter to win tickets to State Champs at Old National Centre on March 5th.

NUVO, 3951 N. Meridian St., Suite 200, Indianapolis, IN 46208

SafeUnsubscribe™ editors@nuvo.net

Update Profile | About our service provider

Sent by newsletter@nuvo.net

--

Rob Burgess
News Editor, NUVO
NUVO.net
Phone: 317-808-4614
Twitter: @robaburg

Subject: /Slash
From: NUVO <newsletter@nuvo.net>
To: rburgess@nuvo.net
Date Sent: Wed, 20 Feb 2019 09:40:14 -0500 (EST)
Date Received: Wed, 20 Feb 2019 06:40:29 -0800 (PST)

/Slash: Wednesday, Feb. 20

From the News Desk

Updated 49 min ago

It's Rob Burgess, NUVO News Editor, back with you again. I hope you're having a great Wednesday.

Last week, I told you the first round of voting on our City Committee page had just closed. I'm now in the process of reporting out the winning story. Here's the winning idea, which more than half of you voted for:

"My questions are about Indianapolis migration trends within I-465. Is the downtown housing boom sustainable? How many racial and economic minorities are being forced out? Where are they going? I'd like to see a story focused on answering these questions."

This is a great idea, and I'm excited to tackle it. As a journalist, when I hear these type of questions, my first instinct is to find available data.

My first stop is year-over-year average rent prices in Indianapolis. This won't be news to anyone, but housing costs are on a steady rise. According to numbers from the U.S. Census, the average rent for Indianapolis was $826. In 2017, the number had risen to $908. This increase points toward the same trends seen nationwide during the same period.

Next, I want to see if I can find hard numbers on migration patterns. This is where I'm running into some trouble. The Census data I'm finding is organized by migration from state to state, and county to county. This is useful, but it doesn't get to the heart of the question, which is even more hyperlocal than that.

So, now that I've started getting my facts in order, I need your help again, readers. Do you or someone you know have something to contribute to this story? Where are some specific locations where you see these sorts of trends occurring? What are some examples of low income housing being moved out of certain neighborhoods?

(I've heard Lugar Towers mentioned as one example.)

I'm looking forward to sharing what I find with you. But, more importantly, I'm looking forward to collaborating with readers who are subject matter experts here. Please get in touch with me at rburgess@nuvo.net if you have something to contribute to this story.

In the meantime, things are heating up at the Statehouse. We've got the latest on Hate Crimes, Teacher Pay, and Reproductive Health below.

Finally, you'll notice a pop-up ad when you go to the web site this week—asking you to consider our paid membership program. Our message is clear, and direct: Community journalism can only survive with community support. If you appreciate the type of local, independent journalism NUVO has brought Indianapolis for the past 29 years, your membership will go a long way in helping us continue to year 30 and beyond. 100 percent of membership dollars go towards our editorial budget/paying writers. nuvo.net/membership

Until next week,

Rob

Senate Republicans Gut Hate Crimes Bill

Indiana Senate Republicans gutted a proposed hate crimes bill on Tuesday with an amendment removing protected classes. Immediately after the vote, Gov. Holcomb released a statement criticizing the neutered version. Read more

No Raises for Indiana Teachers in House Budget

Despite months of heated debate, Indiana House Republicans are not setting aside extra dollars for meaningful teacher raises in their version of the state's $14.5 billion education budget plan released Monday night. Read more

Committee Passes Ban on 2nd Trimester Abortions

A bill to criminalize the safest form of abortion in the second trimester has passed out of the House Public Policy committee following hours of testimony against it last week. Read more

House Bill Gives Pregnant Teens Medical Consent

Bill 1547 allows girls 16 or older to consent to prenatal, labor, and delivery care—with provision requiring medical providers to make a reasonable attempt to contact parents/guardians. Read more

Contest: Lily & Madeleine

Enter to win tickets to Lily & Madeleine at Old National Centre on March 1st.

Contest: State Champs

Enter to win tickets to State Champs at Old National Centre on March 5th.

NUVO, 3951 N. Meridian St., Suite 200, Indianapolis, IN 46208

SafeUnsubscribe™ rburgess@nuvo.net

Update Profile | About our service provider

Sent by newsletter@nuvo.net

Subject: /Slash
From: NUVO <newsletter@nuvo.net>
To: editors@nuvo.net
Date Sent: Wed, 20 Feb 2019 09:40:12 -0500 (EST)
Date Received: Wed, 20 Feb 2019 06:40:26 -0800 (PST)

/Slash: Wednesday, Feb. 20

From the News Desk

Updated 49 min ago

It's Rob Burgess, NUVO News Editor, back with you again. I hope you're having a great Wednesday.

Last week, I told you the first round of voting on our City Committee page had just closed. I'm now in the process of reporting out the winning story. Here's the winning idea, which more than half of you voted for:

"My questions are about Indianapolis migration trends within I-465. Is the downtown housing boom sustainable? How many racial and economic minorities are being forced out? Where are they going? I'd like to see a story focused on answering these questions."

This is a great idea, and I'm excited to tackle it. As a journalist, when I hear these type of questions, my first instinct is to find available data.

My first stop is year-over-year average rent prices in Indianapolis. This won't be news to anyone, but housing costs are on a steady rise. According to numbers from the U.S. Census, the average rent for Indianapolis was $826. In 2017, the number had risen to $908. This increase points toward the same trends seen nationwide during the same period.

Next, I want to see if I can find hard numbers on migration patterns. This is where I'm running into some trouble. The Census data I'm finding is organized by migration from state to state, and county to county. This is useful, but it doesn't get to the heart of the question, which is even more hyperlocal than that.

So, now that I've started getting my facts in order, I need your help again, readers. Do you or someone you know have something to contribute to this story? Where are some specific locations where you see these sorts of trends occurring? What are some examples of low income housing begin moved out of certain neighborhoods?

(I've heard Lugar Towers mentioned as one example.)

I'm looking forward to sharing what I find with you. But, more importantly, I'm looking forward to collaborating with readers who are subject matter experts here. Please get in touch with me at rburgess@nuvo.net if you have something to contribute to this story.

In the meantime, things are heating up at the Statehouse. We've got the latest on Hate Crimes, Teacher Pay, and Reproductive Health below.

Finally, you'll notice a pop-up ad when you go to the web site this week—asking you to consider our paid membership program. Our message is clear, and direct: Community journalism can only survive with community support. If you appreciate the type of local, independent journalism NUVO has brought Indianapolis for the past 29 years, your membership will go a long way in helping us continue to year 30 and beyond. 100 percent of membership dollars go towards our editorial budget/paying writers. nuvo.net/membership

Until next week,

Rob

Senate Republicans Gut Hate Crimes Bill

Indiana Senate Republicans gutted a proposed hate crimes bill on Tuesday with an amendment removing protected classes. Immediately after the vote, Gov. Holcomb released a statement criticizing the neutered version. Read more

No Raises for Indiana Teachers in House Budget

Despite months of heated debate, Indiana House Republicans are not setting aside extra dollars for meaningful teacher raises in their version of the state's $14.5 billion education budget plan released Monday night. Read more

Committee Passes Ban on 2nd Trimester Abortions

A bill to criminalize the safest form of abortion in the second trimester has passed out of the House Public Policy committee following hours of testimony against it last week. Read more

House Bill Gives Pregnant Teens Medical Consent

Bill 1547 allows girls 16 or older to consent to prenatal, labor, and delivery care—with provision requiring medical providers to make a reasonable attempt to contact parents/guardians. Read more

Contest: Lily & Madeleine

Enter to win tickets to Lily & Madeleine at Old National Centre on March 1st.

Contest: State Champs

Enter to win tickets to State Champs at Old National Centre on March 5th.

NUVO, 3951 N. Meridian St., Suite 200, Indianapolis, IN 46208

SafeUnsubscribe™ editors@nuvo.net

Update Profile | About our service provider

Sent by newsletter@nuvo.net